Data Compression with ENO Schemes: A Case Study

We study the compression properties of ENO-type nonlinear multiresolution transformations on digital images. Specific error control algorithms are used to ensure a prescribed accuracy. The numerical results reveal that these methods strongly outperform the more classical wavelet decompositions in the case of piecewise smooth geometric images.

Key Words.

AMS(MOS) subject classifications.